NAPLES TO POSITANO

Fly to Naples. Then pick sea or road.

Positano has no airport, no station and very little parking. Everyone lands at Napoli Capodichino (NAP) and does the last 60 km by boat or by car. Both are beautiful. One is quicker on a Friday.

This is a sample PDF that ships with the Riviera theme so the download card has something to open. Replace it with your own travel guide in the editor.

By sea: the pretty way

25 min	Alibus from arrivals to the port, Molo Beverello. Every 20 minutes.
1 h 15	Hydrofoil to Positano. Runs April to October; the last one leaves early afternoon.
5 min	Porters on the pier carry bags up to most hotels for a tip.

Book a flight that lands before noon. Sea sick? Sit at the back, outside.

By road: the quick way

1 h 30	Transfer from arrivals over the Sorrento peninsula and down the Amalfitana. About 60 km.
2 h	The same on a Friday evening in September. Bring patience and a snack.
Shared	Chiara has a group rate for vans. Send her your flight number.

Hiring a car? Parking in Positano is rare and dear. We'd hand it back at the airport.

Arriving: then, stairs

Sea	Boats land at Spiaggia Grande, the main beach, at the bottom of town.
Road	Cars stop on the upper road. Piazza dei Mulini is where the shuttles meet.
On foot	Everything else is steps. Wear shoes you can climb in.

Landing late? Naples is worth a night. Chiara has two hotels near the port.
